For students who require services and supports in addition to specialized academic instruction on their Individualized Education Program (IEP), related services can provide the supports that make learning truly accessible. For some students, these services are the essential tools that allow a student with a disability to participate fully and benefit from their special education services.

The below are examples of related services that may be required for a student:

- Speech Therapy: Crucial for communication in the classroom and beyond.
- Occupational Therapy (OT): Developing fine motor skills, organization, and sensory regulation necessary for school tasks.
- Physical Therapy (PT): Ensuring mobility and functional movement in the school setting.
- Counseling/Social Work: Providing social, emotional, and behavioral support.
- Specialized Transportation: Guaranteeing safe and appropriate access to school.
